GENERALIZING VICE

A gentleman from one of the big cities of this state was here recently and was discussing the vice problem with relation to the action of the Kansas City authorities in abolishing the red light district and disseminating the residents of that city throughout the country and other parts of the city.

During his talk he mentioned the fact that life in a city demonstrated the fact that the entry of women into the ranks of labor had done much to generalize vice whereas it formerly had been specialized by professional practitioners. He believed and there are many who with him believe that this vice has increased remarkably with the entrance of women into the field of labor. Whether this is but one transitory stage of economic evolution or again a permanent evil, is hard to decide. At any rate it can be concluded that magazines, plays and dances of modern times are doing much to break down the barrier of modesty between men and women and are cultivating an ease of discussion and a familiarity with or curiosity about some matters that are decidedly unhealthy.

DANCES

Pawlows the Russian dancer says that the new dance steps are suggestive. She seems to have discovered that they are vulgar and suggestive. Others discovered it before. It is safe to say that no lady would indulge these lascivious movements and that any woman not old enough to know runs some long chances when she gets into that kind of a bunch. They ought to be told. Yet, it is to be wondered that any girl arriving at the dancing age, could fail to know. Information of a certain kind is not withheld nowadays and few indeed can escape knowing. When they plead ignorance it too often is as a palliation for guilt. This is an age when sex matters are predominant and the new dances are but an accentuation of sex excitation.

Fricke gave away $14,000,000 in wedding presents at the marriage of his daughter last week and had money left. He is one of the numerous steel magnates who made their money under a different tariff than that which will regulate their business for a while at least.

At present it appears that there is a contest between stand-patters and progressives as to which shall be the dog and which shall be the tail. So far the progressives appear to be the dog but can't wag the tail.

Vassar College has abolished the use of butter. Another course comprising economy while living is high.

THE NEW TARIFF

The new tariff generally speaking will be good for everybody. The initial benefit will be that it will enable manufacturers to offer at lower prices than has been possible heretofore, the finest, richest imported goods at prices at which much cheaper material was sold. But this is what we naturally have the right to expect from the reduction made by the democratic tariff. It will not only be good for the consumers but undoubtedly for the manufacturers as well. We will be able to get better material for the same money or the same material as before for less money. The increase in purchasing power of the people means more business, and even the business men who allow themselves to be deluded into the belief that higher taxes are essential to prosperity, will soon realize, as has been claimed by the democratic party for years, that the exact reverse is true. When high protective tariff spell-binders are turned loose in the next national campaign, we know now just what they will proclaim, because within that time there will not be sufficient opportunity for the full effect of the new conditions to be felt by every one affected. There will be no occasion however, for the wholesale reduction in wages which has been contended all the time would result from low tariff or free trade. There will be no great decline in the prices of farm products on account of the consumption by laborers even if they get less wages nor will there be any fall in prices of farm products by reason of importation of such allowed in the new tariff and certainly farm products cannot be affected so far as their export is concerned, unless favorably. The democratic party has held that we have no right to expect to sell to foreign countries while we refuse to buy from them. The democratic party has held that free trade, approximated as nearly as it can possibly be, is the correct principle of government and international relationship. The fact that we have been able to sell our products to countries whose manufactured products have been refused entry into this country by a protective tariff, is no answer to the question, for there has been a steady development in grain growing countries which have increased sales of products in competition with us and the needed supplies by countries not raising sufficient cereals within their own borders are being obtained to a greater extent every year from our competitors. Eventually this would result in no market for us or the necessity for the reduction in the price of our grain to a losing point in order to compete. But we will hear the howls of free trade having been established by the present administration and all of the vicissitudes which may come upon us of ever kind, attributed to it, when as a matter of fact the present tariff approaches no where near free trade such as we will have in this country within the next decade. The operation of the present tariff will be so satisfactory that the popular demand will be for a much greater reduction 4 years from now than there was during the recent revision. Mark the prediction.

"Home Run" Baker and the Liberty Bell are the two boasts of Philadelphia with Baker in the lead. The papers are full of Mrs. Pankhurst and murder trials but they will fade into insignificance next week after Hallowe'en.
